

For my creative exploration, I decided on creating something I'm adding to my Packaging class. I talked about how bad my artist block has been, and this assignment gave me the opportunity to branch off an idea I sketched out a couple weeks ago. I sketched five cute little pastry fairy guys because I was hungry and I love pastries and bakery foods. I pitched the idea to my Packaging teacher because I was stuck on that current project: create a packaging for anything. And I decided on expanding my sketch. I then created notes on what kind of environments the five fairies lived in, all some from different places, and started designing cards. I will be showing just one example as well as the fairies I made.

Again, this helped me get out of my creative block and start world making, character designing and overall, I really enjoyed myself! I had fun doing this!

the Croissant and her environment's information/idea!

This is Kiki the Cupcake, Lottie the Cafe Latte, Poppy the Cake Pop, and Chobi the Chocolate chip and Blueberry Muffin!

These little guys will be turned into physical stickers later!
